

SELWYN PROJECT NEWSLETTER

November 2014 issue

A new newsletter for the Selwyn Project

It gives me great pleasure to share with you the first newsletter we've published since I became CEO of Selwyn Chihong Mining Ltd. last year. I have more than 30 years' mining experience, having planned, constructed and operated mines for Australian, Canadian and Chinese companies. I first learned of the Selwyn Project when I was retired and living happily in Victoria. When I heard about the significant amount of resources, the high development and operating costs and that there was no existing infrastructure to service the site, I couldn't resist the challenge to get involved in such a complex project!

Building strong relationships

In my experience, the most critical factor to the success of the Selwyn Project is the development of strong enduring partnerships. We are working with First Nations, residents of local communities, businesses and governments to develop relationships built on trust. Our partners must have confidence we will take care of our employees and the environment. To that end, we are developing the Selwyn Project to the highest international standards of employee health and safety and environmental protection. We are also working to ensure that local businesses and communities benefit from the development and operation of the Project.

Working with a team of experts

Northerners, local communities, partners, investors and shareholders must also have confidence in our ability to develop the Selwyn Project successfully. Our team of highly skilled and experienced professionals share my values and my vision and we are supported by internationally renowned organizations such as Hatch, SRK, and KCB, who have extensive experience developing mines all over the world. Together, we will deliver a sustainable project built on the following commitments:

- Maintaining and practising the highest international standards for safety and environment protection
- Doing things right, from the very beginning
- Being fair and transparent with all stakeholders, in hiring, purchasing, and maximizing local business opportunities
- Having a zero tolerance policy for drugs, alcohol and discrimination

Keeping you informed

We have a lot of work to do over the coming years and we want to keep you informed about our progress. This newsletter will be published on a regular basis and you can find out more about the project on the Selwyn Chihong website at www.selwynchihong.com. We want to hear from you because your opinions are important and will help us develop a better project. If you have any comments or suggestions, please let us know. In the communities, you can visit or contact our Community Liaison Officers, Sandra Bob (Ross River) and Rose Schwarz, (Watson Lake) – their contact information is on page 4 of this newsletter. You can also e-mail info@chihongmining.com or phone 604.620.6188.

In the Community

APRIL: VISITS TO ROSS RIVER AND WATSON LAKE

Richard and other members of the Selwyn Chihong team:

- Met with Chiefs and Councils
- Attended Community meetings
- Participated in local job fairs

JUNE: STUDENTS LEARN ABOUT LIFE IN AN EXPLORATION CAMP

Twenty-two Grade 10 students and their teachers from schools in Ross River and Watson Lake came to site to learn about working in the mining industry.

The goal of the day was to share information about different jobs in mining and exploration. We also talked about the education and experience people need for these jobs.

AUGUST: TWO GROUPS OF ELDERS COME FOR A VISIT

We welcomed two groups of Elders from the Ross River Dena Council and Liard First Nation to the Selwyn Project in August. The weather was good, so we took helicopter tours and camp tours.

We flew the Elders around the Selwyn Project property, visited our Anniv drill site and toured the facilities in Don Camp, including:

- the offices and medic and ambulance facilities
- the recreation room, the 'dry' (wash, shower and laundry) and the sleeping quarters
- the kitchen and dining facilities, where we shared a meal together
- the core shacks, where we saw how the drill core arrives at camp, by truck and helicopter, and how we log, mark and photograph the core

The Elders were interested to hear about what Selwyn Chihong is doing to protect water and wildlife at the proposed Project. They also gave us lots of good feedback. One of the highlights of the trip was when the Elders had the chance to meet up with some of the Kaska young people working at site.

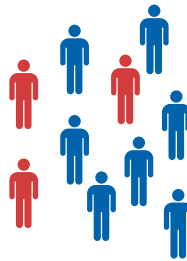

BUY LOCAL. HIRE LOCAL. TRAIN LOCAL.

$890,000

2013 SPENDING IN YUKON

More than $170M spent to date to develop the proposed Selwyn Project.

In Q1, 2014, 30% of the Selwyn Project workforce came from Yukon.

70% OF YUKON WORKFORCE FROM ABORIGINAL COMMUNITIES

We are developing a training strategy to help local residents develop the skills they need for jobs in the mining industry. We estimate the proposed mine could create 1,500 jobs during construction and 750 jobs during operations.

Meet Sandra and Rose, our Community Liaison Officers

Sandra Bob and Rose Schwarze are Selwyn Chihong's Community Liaison Officers (CLOs), our local representatives in Ross River and Watson Lake.

If you have any comments or questions about the Project, Sandra and Rose are the people to talk to! They will listen, find the answers to your questions, and pass on your concerns to other members of the Selwyn Team.

Sandra and Rose can tell you about upcoming community activities and events. They can tell you about Selwyn jobs and contracting opportunities.

Sandra in Ross River loves to talk to people! On a typical work day, she spends her time reviewing resumes and answering calls about job openings in Selwyn camps. Sometimes, Sandra helps out by picking up community members who are going to or coming back from the project site. She also helps to coordinate community events and activities.

Rose usually starts her day with a cup of black coffee, answering calls, and reviewing resumes for camp jobs. Rose does not have an office at the moment, so for now, you can reach Rose on her cell phone. You might also find her in the local coffee shop getting that morning coffee or helping out at community events and activities.

If you live in Ross River, drop by and chat with Sandra:

About the Selwyn Project

The Selwyn Project is a proposed zinc-lead mine, located at Howard's Pass in eastern Yukon, 165 kilometres east of Ross River and 280 km north of Watson Lake, straddling the border with the Northwest Territories. The project is one of the largest undeveloped zinc-lead deposits in the world.

The Selwyn Project is in the advanced exploration phase. This means Selwyn Chihong, with its team of experts and consultants, is conducting the technical and environmental research and studies required to design the proposed mine and begin preparing to apply for the project to enter the environmental and socio-economic assessment process.

The Selwyn Project is owned and operated by Selwyn Chihong Mining Ltd., (Selwyn Chihong), the Canadian subsidiary of Yunnan Chihong Zinc & Germanium Co., Ltd.

Our new website launched in October!

All summer, we were working on a new website for the proposed Selwyn Project. The site will be one of the important ways we share information about the project and our approach to mineral development in Canada's North. Learn more about:

- Who we are and how we work
- The ways we are working to protect the environment and respect the people and places where we operate

- How we are building relationships and finding ways for local communities to benefit from what we do
- The technical and environmental research we've been doing to help us design the proposed mine
- Where we are today on the Project's development timeline
